

- Refund Policy: The parties agreed that the first party does not have an established refund policy for its services. A subscription is final once it has been made, and no refunds will be given for payments.

Checklist before subscribing to our services:

- It is advisable to check all the information about our services and risks involved in trading. We don't offer any kind of promissory or guaranteed returns.
- In any case, due to any personal reason if any client cannot continue services after making the payment, then we can provide services in the future
- Before making payment you can clear all your doubts by speaking with our executive.
- You can read all information about our packages, and services before subscription and it is advisable from our side to check the refund policy, privacy policy, complaints, and disclaimer before subscription.
- For us, our clients are always on top priority so we don't compromise with the support but about results in our research recommendations, we don't give any guarantee. Market movements are not in our hands so never expect consistently profitable results from our services and prepare yourself for losses also.
- Before opting for our services, we strongly encourage you to familiarize yourself with the risks involved in trading or investing in the market. If you are totally new in the market, check research recommendations for a few days so that you can avail proper knowledge and information on stocks and market volatility.
- Make sure that you do not give your credit card details to any third party who could access your account. Don't share your credentials with anyone in any form. This way we will make sure that your membership is safe.
- To enjoy uninterrupted services, customers are responsible for the timely payment of the renewal fee
- By making payment for our services, it is implied that you have read and agreed to all of the terms and conditions, disclaimers, Disclosure, privacy policy, refund, and cancellation policies.